GLOBAL SOLUTIONS ON YOUR DOORSTEP

Conflict Marbella is the new consultancy service dedicated to assisting clients in the region with bespoke intelligence, investigation, security and risk advice.

A key advantage of the services Conflict offers is the ability to call on reliable local resources in Marbella that know the coast better than anyone while having the ability for operations to be controlled externally from our head office in London.

Tapping into the wide range of services from long established parent company Conflict International in London, they can offer worldwide assistance with local representatives on hand to create bespoke solutions.

Director Mike LaCorte is bilingual in English and Spanish and has been coming to the region for a number of years. During that time he has built an extensive network of covert personnel who fit with the ethos of the company which places trust, reputation and high quality fieldwork at the heart of everything they do.

Mike says: "A key advantage of the services Conflict offers is the ability to call on reliable local resources in Marbella that know the coast better than anyone while having the ability for operations to be controlled externally from our head office in London."

"It's also important to remember that many investigations have an international element, so the option to call on investigators in many jurisdictions worldwide gives Conflict Marbella much greater flexibility when following lines of enquiry."

GAINING A VITAL ADVANTAGE IN BUSINESS

Knowledge is power when it comes to running a successful business. With the help of professional intelligence, you can gain a vital competitive advantage when making strategic decisions.

Conflict are global leaders in compiling high quality in-depth due diligence reports for when you may be involved in mergers and acquisitions, fraud prevention and detailed background checks before hiring key employees.

"Appointing someone to a position of trust and responsibility within an organisation is always an important step so it is natural to want to take additional measures to make sure that appointment is the right one."

"Our process can be suited to the specific requirements of a business, whether it is an individual appointment or the assessment of a company ahead of merger or acquisition. We can provide detailed information based on dedicated research and discreet enquiries, always carried out in compliance with existing legislation."

"The recent collapse of BHS in the UK may well turn into a text book example of how not to do proper due diligence. It is vital to find out everything you can about who you might be working alongside."

International asset and debtor tracing also forms an important part of what Conflict does on a regular basis, combining the services of both corporate investigators and forensic accountants to trace and identify hidden assets worldwide. Accountants follow what can often be complex financial trails to reach the source and once identified, investigators then explore avenues to confirm ownership.

All evidence and findings are compiled into a legally admissible report which can be presented in court. The team at Conflict has more than 20 years' experience working with companies all over the world uncovering crucial information that gives you the edge.

"Our reputation has been built on trust for many years – if we didn't have trust we wouldn't have a business."

- Mike La Corte

REPUTATION BUILT ON TRUST

The team behind Conflict Marbella has considerable experience in safeguarding the privacy of leading business people and celebrities from unwanted attention or media intrusion. Covert surveillance services can be coupled with discreet close protection to offer invaluable peace of mind for you or your loved ones.

Ultimately everything Conflict does comes down to trust. Mike LaCorte says as much of their work is discreet by its very nature so they are happy to have many people in the UK and in Spain who can recommend the services they have provided for many years. "Our reputation has been built on trust for many years – if we didn't have trust we wouldn't have a business."
